Serveden, Award: Behold your foc!

From every quarter we are daily and hourly receiving accounts of the tricks, the falsehoods, and the unheard of measures to which the locos are resorting to deteat the Democratic Whig ticket on Monday next

Never in the whole history of political warfare have we witnessed such desperation. The expelled office-holders have staked every thing upon this election, feeling certain if they sno cred they can plunder from the public Treasury enough to repay the money which they are now using

From one end of the State to the other, a system of fa'-- Bood has been resorted to. Stories are put in stroulation, this weak, at every point, from York county to Arcostook, as various in shape and as ourregeous in character as throughwilbey are draigond undernoce. ...

Is there a man of any party who will calmly sit by and see these things perpetrated and not rush to the rescue? Fellow citizens, lay aside for one day your business, and devote it to your country.

If you are standing walk, if you are walking rum, it clate his dignity and destiny. We rejoice at you are running Av to the rescue of your country!--

A letter just received informs us, "That the board of Selectmen (Locos) in a town in this county have been to three whigh who ere quite poor and PERSUADED their toreceive assistance from that town in order, no doubt, to disqualify them from voting."

The great multitude of the Whigs of Bangor, manifested a fine spirit of union and harmony at their meeting last evening. Every man seemed animated by a determination to push press was despatched North on that subject last on the Democratic principles and measures of the Whigs to a successful issue, as being transcendently superior to the gratification of mere personal preferences for men. Thus true putriots will ever act. Let every man now dounte himself to the cause of his country, and to the election of the entire whig ticket for State and them as I find them affoat about the City. Representatives.

We have a strong and popular list of Representative candidates, selected with a wise regard to the various and important interests .. of the city. It becomes the Whigs of Bangor, now they have an increased representation in the Legislature, to give this ticket a generous and hearty support. Let the stout majorities of 1840 be again realized in our Gibraltar of whig principles.

Correct the Lie.

The I ocos say the whige are texing ten and coffee, and call upon their party to resist it. . . It is all a Lie! Spread the word from one

The Board of Alderinen are in session this day to correct the list of voters. Let the committees be active. Let every man see his name, on the list. Bee that your neighbol is on. Let every whig be registered. Work to day like men laboring in the sacred cause of liberty.

The opposition, last evening, at their meeting had a great deal to say about tea and coffee teing taxed. This humbug has been used so treely that the speech prepared upon it had to be let off even after the arrival of the news that they are to be admitted free of duty !

DAGUERREOTYPE MINIATURES.

It will be seen by an advertisement in our columns to day that Messrs Perkins & Prait. have opened a studio in the beautiful half at the Bangor House for the purpose of taking likenesses with the Daguerrotype. This is one of the most remarkable discoveries of modern times, in which the light of the sun with unerring rectitude is made the master pencil in portraying the linjaments of the human form without the slightest variation of a single hair. Messrs Perkins & Pratt are young gentleman of excellent moral character, fine attainments and every way worthy the patronage of our citizens. The miniatures taken by them are much

From Washington.

We gave yesterday the proceedings of Congress on Saturday, and of course we have hitle of additional interest. The following letter from Hornce Greely editor of the New York Tribune, now at Washington, gives the latest invent some ancestor in backrain who did not state of afficirs at the capitol.

I am induced to believe that the Veto on the Exchange Bank Bill will be sent in on Wednesday not earlier. It will be forwarded to New-York by express, and probably arrive early next morning.

The intelligence of 'Patriot' movements on the frontier and in the interior of New York. causes much solicitude here. A Government ex-I will mention a rumor which got affort here to-day that Mr. Webster was called out of church this morning to give Mr. Fox his passports! The story is absurd in every respect, but its currency is an indication of meneral excitability on the subject.

And now for a few Cabinet rumors. I give.

1. That Mr. Crittenden will resign the attorney Generalship on the coming in of the second Veto, even if he should do it solitary and alone.

2. That Mr. Bell, who had at first resolved to cetire also, has concluded to remain at his post at least for the present.

3. That an offer of the Attorney Generalship to John V. L. McMahon of Baltimore has been pointedly declined by him:

partment, peremptorily delined, and volunteered the opinion that not another man could be found in the nation so well fitted by experience and knowledge of our Indian affairs for that post, so John Bell. Whereupon it was resolved that Mr. Bell should be induced to remain, if possible.

I think there can be no doubt that the President is now anxious that there shall be no break up of the Cabinet at present that there shall be no general resignation at any time. He desires that Mr. Webster shall remain at all events. I think, too, that he is desirous of conciliating those who have here been alienated by the exercise of the Veto, and that his next Veto Message will evince that desire. It is confidently stated by some of his intimate friends that he only desires time to mature a plan of National Pinance which shall effectually create a uniform currency and equalize exchanges. doubt on these points not the disposition but the ability to evolve any thing satrictly nows and at the same time efficient on this subject. Aspects change here from day to day. The new Veto Message is the key to the future. Let us await it with what patience we may.

DEATH OF A PORT. For a time, hopes were entertained of his recovery... THOUGHTS ON LABOR

hands are to be used to supply the needs of the mouth and the back. Nam, as there is one mouth to each pair of hands, and each mouth work, then the mouth goes hungry, or, what is worse, the work is done by other hands. In the is suffered, and the man dies; in the other he eats and wears the earnest of another man's work, and so a wrong is inflicted. -The law of warp of Pate, and its woof of Free-will, that in addition to the result of a man's duty, when The Bangor Mechanics Association have by faithfully done, there is a satisfaction and recfational state of things, Daty and Delight travel the same road, sometimes hand in hand. Labor has an agreeable end, in the result we gain; the kindness of our friends, the love of our children, is of uself worth a thousand times all the pains we take on their account. Labor, in like manner, has a reflective action, and gives the working man a blessing over and above the natural result which he looked for. The duty of labor is written on man's body, in the stout muscle of the arm and the delicate machinery fithe hand. That it is congenial to our nature appears from the elacrity with which children apply themselves to it and find pleasure in the work-itself, without regard to its use. The young duck does not more naturally betake itself to the water, than the by to the work which goes on around him. There is some work, which even the village slugard and the city top love to do, and that they buly can do well. These two latter lacts show that hour in some degree, is no lesses pleasure than a duty, and prove that a man is not by nature a 1-zy animal who is forced by Hunger to dig and Yet there are some who count labor a curse and a punishment. They regard the necessary of work, as the greatest evil brought on ds by the 'Fall;' as a ourse that will cling to our last sand. Many submit to this yoke, and toil, and save, in hope to leave their posterity out of the reach of this primitive curse.

Others, still more foolish, regard it as a disgrace. Young men the children of honest parents, who. hving by their manly and toil-hardened hands, bear up the burthen of the world on their shoulders, and eat with thankful hearts. their daily bread, won in the sweat-of-their face are ashamed of their fathers' occupation, and forsaling the plough, the class, or the forge, seek a livelihood in what is sometimes named a more respectable and genteel vocation; that is in a calling which demands less of the hands, and quite often less of the head likewise, than their tathers hard craft; for that imbecility. which drives men to those callings, has its seat mostly in a higher region than the hands. Atfianced damsels beg their lovers to discover or work. The Sophomore in a small college is ashanied of his lather who wears a blue frock, and his custy brother who infls with the saw and the axe. These men, after they have wiped off the dist and s int of their carly life sometimes become arrant coxcombs, and standing like the brads of Hermes without honos, having only a mouth, make taces at auch au commue to servethe state by plain handiwork. Some one restes an anecdote which illustrates quite plainly this foolish desire of young men to live without work. It happened in one of our large towns, that a Shopkeeper and a Blacksmith, both hving in the same street, advertised for an apprentice on the same day. In a given time filty heardless youngsters applied to the Haberdash The and intitude of the Like the Total time buty has a terrible moral, namely, that forty nine out of the fity were disappointed at the outset.

Il were to be wished that this notion of labor being disgraceful was confined to vain young men and gildy maidens of itle habits and weak heads, for then it would be looked upon as one of the diseases of early life, which we know must come, and rejoice when our young friends have happily passed through it, knowing it is, ment-consists in part of the following articlesone of the ills that fl ah is hear to, but is not very grievous, and comes but once in the lifetime. This aversion to labor, this notion that it is a curse and a disgrace, this selfish desire to 4. That Balle Peyton formerly M. C. from Is the secramental sin of the better class of our great cities. The children of the poor pray to be rid of it, and what son of a rich man escape from the general and natural lot of man, to be rid of it, and what son of a rich man learns a trade or tills the soil with his own hands?" Many men look on the ability to be idle as the most desirable and honorable ability. They glory in being the Mouth that consumes, not the Hand that works Yel-one would sup pose a manifi useless hands and itle head, in the midst of God's world, where each thing works for all; in the midst of the toil and sweat of the human race, must needs make an apology for his sloth, and would ask pardon for violiting the common law, and withdrawing his neck from the general yoke of humanity. Still more does he need an apology, it he is active only in getting into his hands the result of others' work. But it is not so. The man who is rich enough to be idle values himself on his leisure, and what is - worse, ...others value him for it. Active men must make a shamefaced excuse for being busy, and working men for their toil, as if business and toil were not the duty of all and the support of the world in certain countries men are divided horizontally, into two classes, the men who work and the men who RULE, and the latter despise the einployment of the further as mean and degrading. It is the slave's duty to plough, said a Heathen poet, and a freeman's business to enjoy at leisure the fruit of that ploughing. It is a remnant of those barbarous times, when all labor was performed by serfs and bondmen, and exemption from toil was the exclusive sign of the fréeborn. But this notion, that labor is disgraceful, conflicts as sharply with our political institutions, as it does with common sense, and the law God has writ on man. An old author, centuries before Christ, was so far enlightened on this point, as to see the true dignity of manuni work, and to say, "God is well pleased with honest works; he suffers the laboring man who ploughs the earth by night and day, to call his life most noble. If he is good and true, he offers continual secrified to Cad, and is not so fustrous to his dress as in his heart."
